Intuitive Bioresonance Report (IBA) Explained -An Orientation of your results-

Purpose: This explanation is intended to support the understanding of your IBA assessment and prevent you from feeling overwhelmed by unfamiliar concepts.

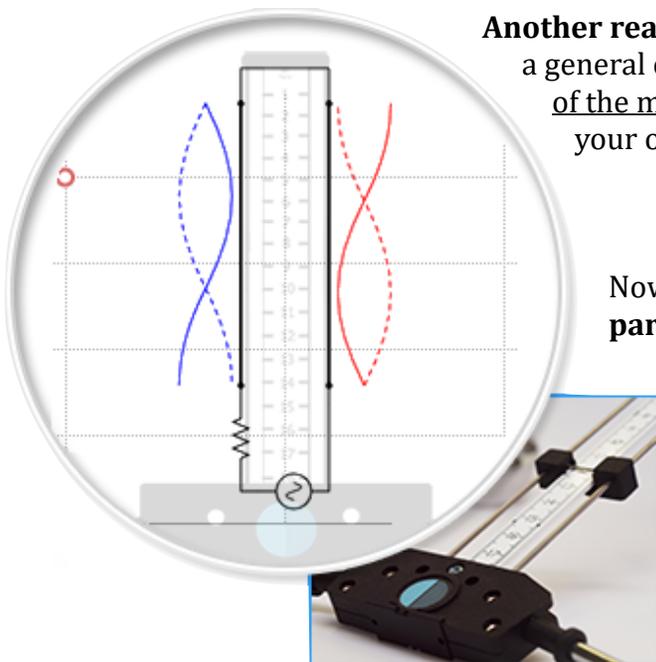

Important Disclaimer:

The information in this report is provided for information purposes only. It is not intended, nor should it be used as a substitute for standard medical diagnostic methods or your physician's clinical judgement. The IBA is a non-medical tool that cannot diagnose nor direct prescriptions. It identifies and supports the priority block in a client's physiology and specific priorities to support health. These recommendations are chosen by the client, through subconscious bioresonance, not through the pattern recognition that comes from medical training and research. Instead, it is meant to offer support to your body's natural healing processes, as interpreted by Travis Elliott, via the IBA process.

I take the information in the IBA report seriously, but it exists outside the normal medical diagnostic paradigm. I may talk about an infection like Lyme disease or a condition like heavy metal toxicity, but the IBA findings would not be used to diagnose you with either of these conditions. Other times, the priority may related to an old trauma that is festering, like an unhealed wound, in the deep memory banks of your body, for which there is no official diagnosis. Fortunately, unlike regular medicine, I don't need a diagnosis to help you. I simply follow the lead of the energetics of your physiology: I find medicines that resonate with your system, regardless of the diagnosis.

Another reason this report is not a diagnosis is that it is not a general overview of all imbalances. Rather, it is a snapshot of the most important obstacle, right in this moment, to your own self-healing.

Now that that's out of the way, let's look at the specific parts of the IBA Report!...

IBA EVALUATION — WHAT IS THE PRIORITY LAYER OR BLOCK?

•Remember: we are not getting an aerial view of your whole River of Health (click for pdf; click for video) and all of its obstacles. A river is windingly complex. Each IBA assessment is the “view from the boat” of the closest priority layer that needs help. We are asking, “What is most strongly blocking your ability to heal yourself—right now—and how do we remove that block?” It could be related to blocks in your liver pathways, and it could be related to blocks in your understanding of Consciousness.

•Just because a category in the report says “not a priority,” doesn’t mean that that area of your health is perfectly balanced. This result is not the same as a “negative” test from your doctor. It just means it’s not a primary driver or cause of symptoms right now.

First Row: Initial Intuitive Impression or Analogy

- Your saliva or blood sample contains a massive amount of bioenergetic data that I can intuitively process and interpret into an image. This image is an analogy containing key information about your health.
- I have have worked hard for years to develop and fine-tune this extra sensory ability to perceive and describe this subtle information, and this level of detail is impossible with standardized computer programs or other mechanized assessments.
- It may describe the qualities of the information flow in any level of your physiology—from your dense physical body all the way up to your subtle energy fields.
- This intuitive image is the a snapshot that is critical for a deep understanding of the whole report.

Second Row: Priority Body Systems and Tissue States

- In this section of the IBA, I use a “yes/no” algorithm along with the Lecher antennae to identify one or more body systems that need support. I also determine how the tissues of the body need to shift.
- The tissue state changes are in one of three categories: (1) tissue heat or temperature; (2) tissue moisture [dry or stagnant]; (3) tissue tone [relaxed or tense].
- This section is mostly focused on the physical body and uses more conventional categories of anatomy and physiology.

Third Row: Archetypal Priority

- What we can see, touch, and measure can be important parts of your health. Thyroid disease or chronic bloating are objective and easily described and experienced. But in my experience, this level of assessment isn't enough. Beyond the structures and flow of your body are archetypal patterns that can strongly influence the arc of your life and change the function of your body, emotions, and mind.
- Understanding larger life patterns and how they specifically impact you can add needed richness, depth and power to your healing.
- When appropriate, I will use nature-based analogies, myths, and/or astrological concepts to illustrate areas of your life and health that are currently a struggle.

Fourth Row: Physiology Flow Score (PFS)

- In this part of the assessment, I determine a “flow” score from 1-21(+).
- This number is an overall description of restrictions within your physiology. It reflects the flow of toxins through your liver and kidneys, the flow of emotional processing, the flow of nervous system signals, the flow of chakra and meridian communication, and everything in between.
- Most clients start in the neighborhood of 16-21, which is highly restricted flow. A more optimal score is 10 or below.
- As we work together, this score should trend downwards, though it will spike up as different layers of dysfunction are uncovered and worked with. (e.g., a chronic infection or an unresolved trauma).

Fifth Row: Autonomic Nervous System (ANS) Restriction

- This score is similar to the Physiology Flow Score but narrower in scope. It focuses specifically on the part of your nervous system that is the background regulator of all body functions.
- Your ANS restriction is measured from 1-10, with 10 being the most restricted.
- Ideally, your ANS is able to flow back and forth, from “Rest and Digest” to “Fight/Flight/Freeze” as the situation dictates. Your nervous system should be flexible and dynamic and responsive to your needs. When you sleep, you should repair and detox. When you are in an emergency, your digestion should quiet down and your muscles should get all the blood they need.
- A high restriction score means that your nervous system is more rigid and stuck, and it means that important body functions will also be rigid and stuck.

Sixth Row: Infection Stress

- This section is a non-diagnostic assessment of infection stress. In order for an infection to show up in this section, the following two criteria must be true:
 1. The electromagnetic signature of that infection is present in your saliva or blood sample. AND...
 2. It is a priority to work to support your body's immune system.
- Please note: this is not a medical test for an infection. E.g., the IBA is not a "Lyme disease test." Also note, that you may have an active infection even if this section of the IBA says "none as priority."
- The IBA identifies what specific aspects of your health are most important right now. Sometimes an infection is the most important, and other times it won't be. If your immune system is weak because you are anxious, your nervous system dysfunction is the main issue, not the infection.

Seventh and Final Row of the Evaluation Section: Other Potential Blockages

- This section is a "catch-all" section for less frequent priorities. In other methods of evaluations—for other doctors—these factors are very common. But with the IBA I am able to dive deeply into your body and being. Rather than working with intestinal bacteria directly, we might work with the underlying issues of the nervous system that are directly leading to the intestinal dysfunction that creates unbalanced intestinal bacteria. However, because these factors are sometimes important, I include them in this section so that you know that I am considering them.
 1. Cell Danger Response: In situations of past trauma (emotional, physical, infection, etc), the wiring for the fight/flight response gets strengthened and more "trigger happy" and can trigger anxiety, but also most cell-based allergic responses. This finding means that extra care (and extra time) needs to be taken to calm the nervous system and help with the effects of past trauma.
 2. EMF sensitivities, food allergies, environmental allergies.
 3. Specific Environmental Toxins such as solvents or heavy metals.
 4. Specific Nutritional Imbalances: No person has perfect nutritional balance, but in my experience, the imbalances are often the result of deeper issues. It's not just a matter of taking more Vitamin D or Vitamin B.
 5. Intestinal Flora Imbalances.

IBA SUPPORT PLAN— HOW DO WE MOVE YOU DOWN THE RIVER?

The final section is the heart of the IBA: “How can we specifically assist the healing of your body?” Rather than using a treatment protocol that was designed for a condition, I am using bioresonance and intuition to identify what specific support works to stimulate a healing reaction.

In other words:

- When I perform this part of the assessment, I am only focused on nutritional or herbal support that are a priority for the client sample in front of me. I am not referring back to the Evaluation results and matching a treatment for each imbalance. This latter strategy is a “whack-a-mole” approach that has limited effectiveness.
- For example, if the Evaluation lists a chronic infection and a B-vitamin deficiency, the treatment is not a knee-jerk attempt to kill the infection or give B-vitamins. Your body may have a higher priority. For example, the best weapon against Lyme disease is your own immune system, and perhaps (for example) your immune system is shackled by a severely restricted nervous system. Therefore, relaxing your nervous system could be the most important thing we could do for your infection. AND, it may help increase your absorption of B-vitamins from your food, without having to supplement with a pill.
- I don’t know what the support plan will be before I start the IBA. My job is to learn about, and be open to, all kinds of products and lifestyle changes that can help you heal. I listen to your system and find herbs, supplements, lifestyle changes and referrals that your body can effectively work with.
